In den letzten Jahrzehnten lässt sich ein härteres Durchgreifen der Polizei, eine Verschärfung des Strafrechts und ein teils massiver Anstieg der Gefangenenanzahl in allen liberalen Demokratien beobachten. Ein neuer Wille zum Strafen greift um sich, wie Didier Fassin in seinem brisanten Buch nachweist. Um dieses Moment des Strafens zu verstehen, geht Fassin drei zentralen Fragen nach: Was ist Strafen? Warum strafen wir? Und wen bestrafen wir? Anhand zahlreicher Fallbeispiele vergleicht er die faktische Praxis des Strafens mit klassischen Theorien des liberalen Rechtsstaats und zieht historische sowie ethnologische Forschungen zu anderen Kulturen des Strafens heran. Es zeigt sich: Die realen Strafpraktiken weichen stark von den liberalen Idealvorstellungen ab. Sie geben den Blick frei auf einen hochgradig ungerechten und diskriminierenden Repressionsapparat, der die dunkle Seite der gegenwärtigen neoliberalen Gesellschaften bildet, mit deren Siegeszug er zeitlich und geographisch korreliert. Ein auf ethnographischer Forschung sowie theoretischen Einsichten basierendes und zugleich in seinen Fallgeschichten erschütterndes Buch.

How can police officers engaged in public order policing ensure they act lawfully, secure safe criminal convictions, avoid civil claims and, perhaps most importantly, maintain the peace? Topics covered range from day-to-day problems such as drunken brawls and football offences to more serious issues such as violent protest and terrorism, providing you with the full spectrum of possible encounters and highlighting transferable skills. The book contains many useful practical features including definition boxes for commonly-used terms, and case studies and scenarios. Key points and best practices are summarised throughout the chapters, helping you to absorb the information and providing for a practical quick reference. The aim of sustainable development is to balance our economic, environmental and social needs, allowing prosperity for current and future generations. Countries must be allowed to meet their basic needs of employment, food, energy, water and sanitation. There is a clear relationship between the three topics of the book: right to education has been recognized as a human right - education has a role in peace-building. Additionally, education, human rights and peace have a significant role in sustainable development. The United Nations have defined a broad range of internationally accepted rights, including civil, cultural, economic, political and social rights. However, this book demonstrates that there are still people and nations not respecting the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Chapters from Brazil, Cameroon, Ethiopia, Kazakhstan, Israel, Peru, Russia and South-Africa cover topics like civil war, human abuses, the vulnerability of indigenous people, abortion, epilepsy, food security, lack of health equities in maternal and child health, and democracy or lack of it. We sincerely hope that this book will contribute to the joint pursuit of humanity to make the world better after we all get over the coronavirus pandemic.

This collection presents a diverse set of case studies and theoretical reflections on how criminologists engage with practitioners and policy makers while undertaking research. The contributions to this volume highlight both the challenges and opportunities associated with doing criminological research in a reflexive and collaborative manner. They further examine the ethical and practical implications of the 'impact' agenda in the higher education sector with respect to the production and the dissemination of criminological knowledge. Developed to serve as an internationally accessible reference volume for scholars, practitioners and postgraduate criminology students, this book responds to the awareness that criminology as a discipline increasingly encompasses not only the study of crime, but also the agencies, process and structures that regulate it. Key questions include: How can criminal justice policy be studied as part of the field of criminology? How do we account for our own roles as researchers who are a part of the policy process? What factors and dynamics influence, hinder and facilitate 'good policy'?

Equality and Diversity is a key theme on all policing degree courses. The book starts by contextualising equality and diversity within the legislative and policy framework. It then examines the recent historical context by outlining some of the difficulties and criticisms that the police have faced in dealing with matters of equality and diversity. It considers diversity, not only in terms of how the police relate to the general public, but also how diversity issues impact on police careers and occupational culture.
